

Aion Path

RISE TOGETHER

Hello Friends,

Big news! I have joined the team with a brand new ministry called Aion Path. It is focused on helping dads connect with their sons and daughters through discipleship, practical skills, and adventure. Aion Path just launched in January of 2025, and it is already gaining momentum—dozens of dads are jumping on this opportunity to lead their families! The organization is based in Long Beach, California, launching first in that region; next in the Dallas area, and now in the Seattle and Pacific Northwest region.

I will be leading the Seattle region of this organization. I will be building relationships with churches, fathers, and donors to grow the ministry in this area. I am especially excited to dive into the adventure side—hiking, camping, rafting—helping create meaningful experiences that bring dads and sons, and daughters closer together. That is part of the bigger vision for my role!

Kathleen and I are excited about this new season. Lord willing, we will be adding to our family soon; please join us in prayer for this. Our dreams and goals as part of that is that Kathleen can be a stay-at-home mom. We are trusting God to provide for our family as only He can!

So, we are building a team of people who believe in this vision and want to be part of it with us.

Would you consider supporting us with a monthly gift or a one-time donation?

We are grateful for your generosity, and appreciate all of your prayers for this new season.

I would love to catch up, answer any questions, and share more in person or over the phone.
